I just wanted to write to you, as I sit here watching you sleep, I know my heart truly belongs to you. I love that we both have the talent and ability to get up on stage and rock out, then come home and fall asleep in each others arms. You are a dream come true for me, and every moment that goes by that we are together is a gift from the rock gods. I love you so very deeply. You know my soul because it is your own.
